the individual

School year memories turn to nostalgic scenes of teachers, sports, social activities, friends, classes, rooms, academics, awards, grades, spirits and things that mean experiences with an aura of achievement and pursuit of things yet to come and perhaps not fully appreciated of future individuals participating, be they parents, teachers, administrators, legislators and students themselves who add the major catalytic mass that upgrades society. The final analysis is the interaction of each individual's thoughts and memories. To the individuals at Fort Hunt High School we dedicate

The 1968 Fortress.

academics

The purpose of school is to teach, and the purpose of students is to learn. This year at Fort Hunt, teachers have taught, and students have learned, of the mechanics and politics, of the wonder and beauty, that comprises Man's ever-changing world. And Fort Hunt's excellent faculty found time not only to teach each student of the world around him, but also to make him more aware of the world within his mind and heart, that he might develop as an individual in his own right.

Mr. Gibbs, Principal

administration

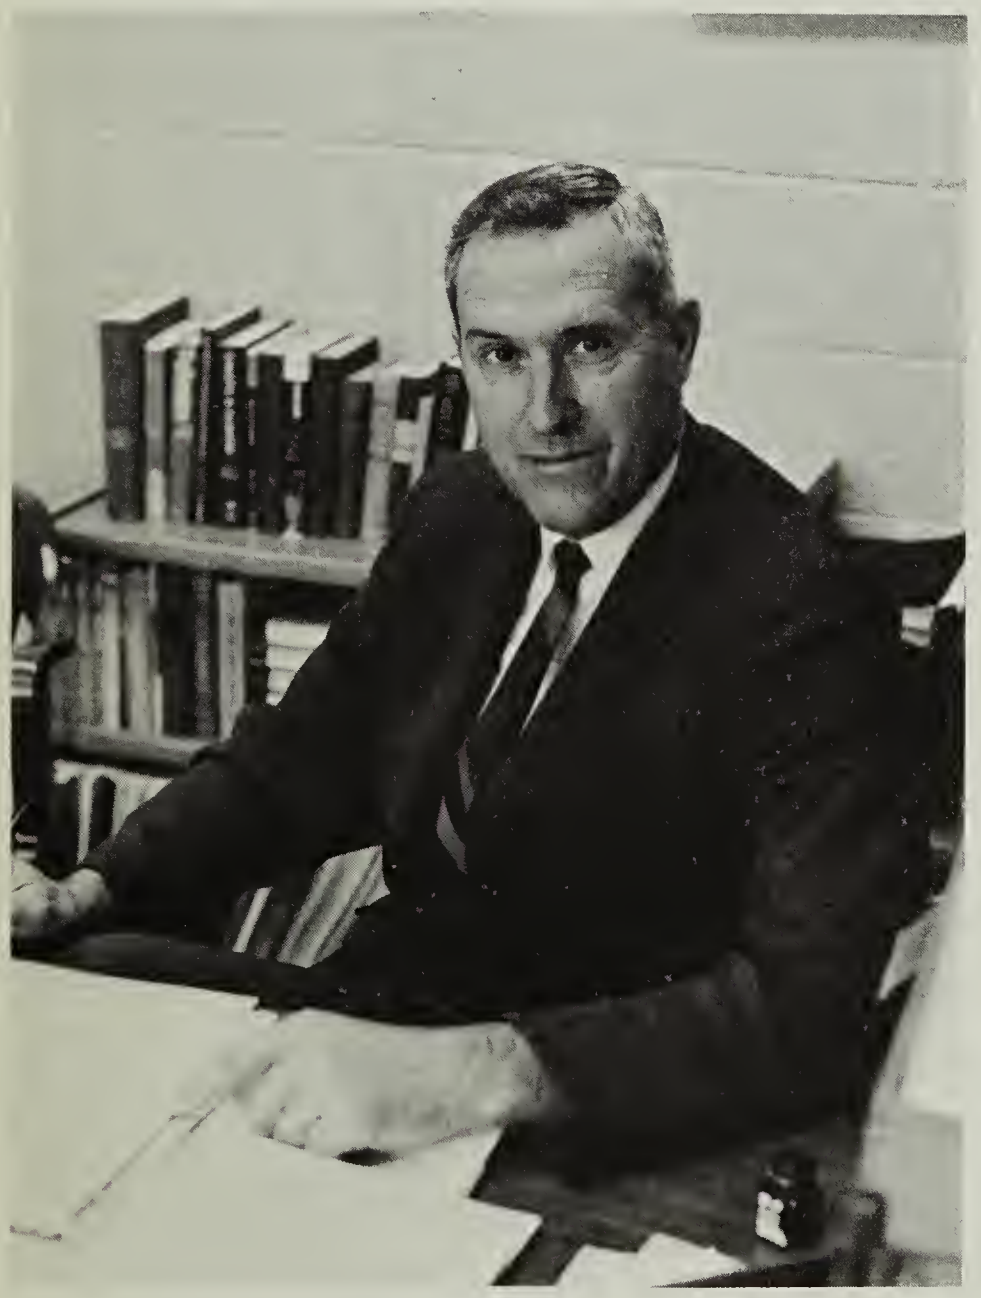

Dedicated to educating today's youth for tomorrow's world, the administration copes with the daily business of Fort Hunt. Yet, under the concerned and able leadership of Mr. Gibbs and his capable staff, the administration continues to express strong interest and support for the many and varied programs of an active student body, that students might learn from doing as well as from class.

Mr. Adams; Assistant Principal for Administration

Miss Duncan; Administrative Assistant.

Mr. Lyons; Assistant Principal for Instruction.

Mr. Dolinger; Assistant Principal for Instruction.

From processing college applications to listening to complaints, the Guidance Department at Fort Hunt is always available to meet the needs of students. The incoming freshmen and the graduating Senior both receive expert help from the trained staff in solving questions of an academic, social, or personal nature. Under the direction of Mr. Smart, the Guidance Department is fully prepared to help the individual in this time of growing up.

The language of Shakespeare and Frost, the insights of Plato and Salinger, are brought together within the English Department, which continues the evolutionary trends of last year to combine the study of classical and contemporary literature with a searching study of human nature. The English Department not only gives students a firm background of the mechanics and beauty of their language, it also helps them to discover for themselves the depth and wisdom, the humanness and fragility, of man within a tumulted and changing world.

The Language Department not only seeks to give students a firm foundation in the mechanics of their chosen language, it also introduces to Federals the subtle nuances and beauty of foreign cultures. The classical language of Latin is each year revived for a growing number of students and given fresh scope. In addition to Spanish, French and German, Russian is being taught for the second year, and Mrs. Hall has paved the way for the possible study of Greek.

social studies

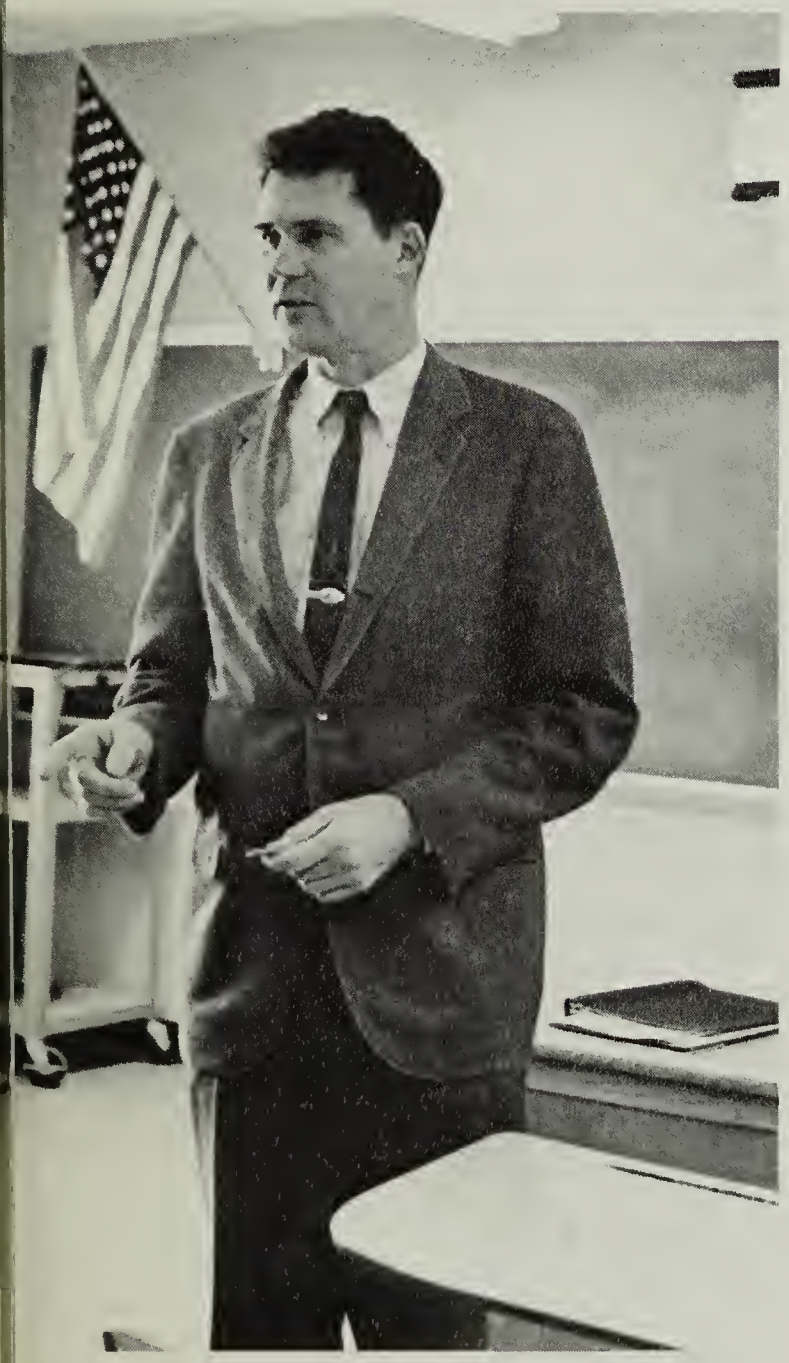

In this tangled world, the Social Studies Department makes the operation of our complex government more meaningful to Fort Hunt students. As the same time, it instills in each student the rich heritage of man's history with government to present man's past in hope that Federals will create a better future. The study of geography not only gives Federals a glimpse of other countries, other cultures, and other problems, its study reminds Federals that they are not alone in search for a new tomorrow.

The Greeks believed that the universe was orderly. The Fort Hunt Science Department employs the latest advances in education to present the latest advances in science so that Federals can have the opportunity to explore the ever growing wonders revealed in the scientists quest for truth. Involved in Fort Hunt's quest for truth are excellent courses in general science, earth science, biology, chemistry, and physics.

mathematics

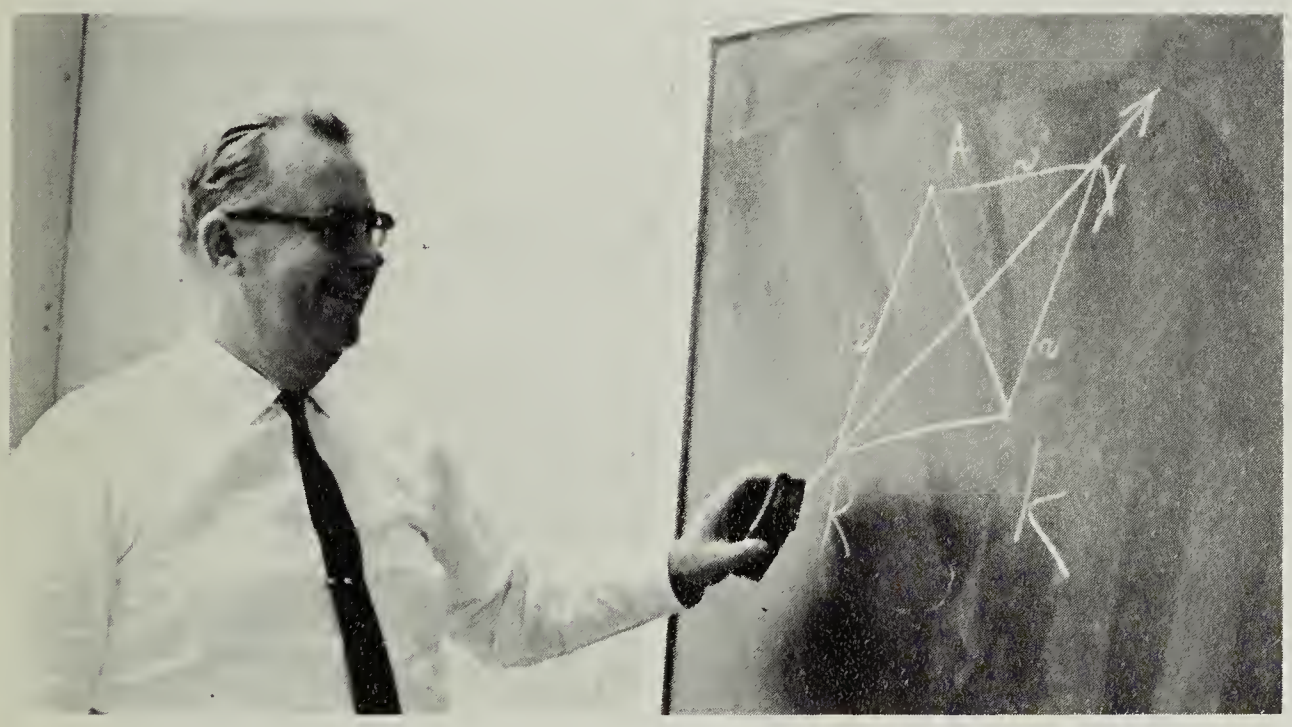

In a world that is growing in technology, the study of math becomes an increasingly more complex field. In an effort to give students a firm grasp of elements of modern mathematics and at the same time to impress upon him the significance of a mathematical future, the Fort Hunt Math Department uses new texts, new techniques, to make the science of numbers an applicable asset to tomorrow's individual.

business

Teaching students to face the business world, the Business Department trains Federals in skills adaptable to the rapidly growing demand of American business for capable employees. Typing, accounting, and stenography are only some of the many talents learned while under the aegus of a department dedicated to combining the high ideas of the humanities with the practicality of the business world. Thus, Federals will face their future with confidence in their abilities and with faith in their fellow men.

Richard R. Jacoby; Friends University, B.S.

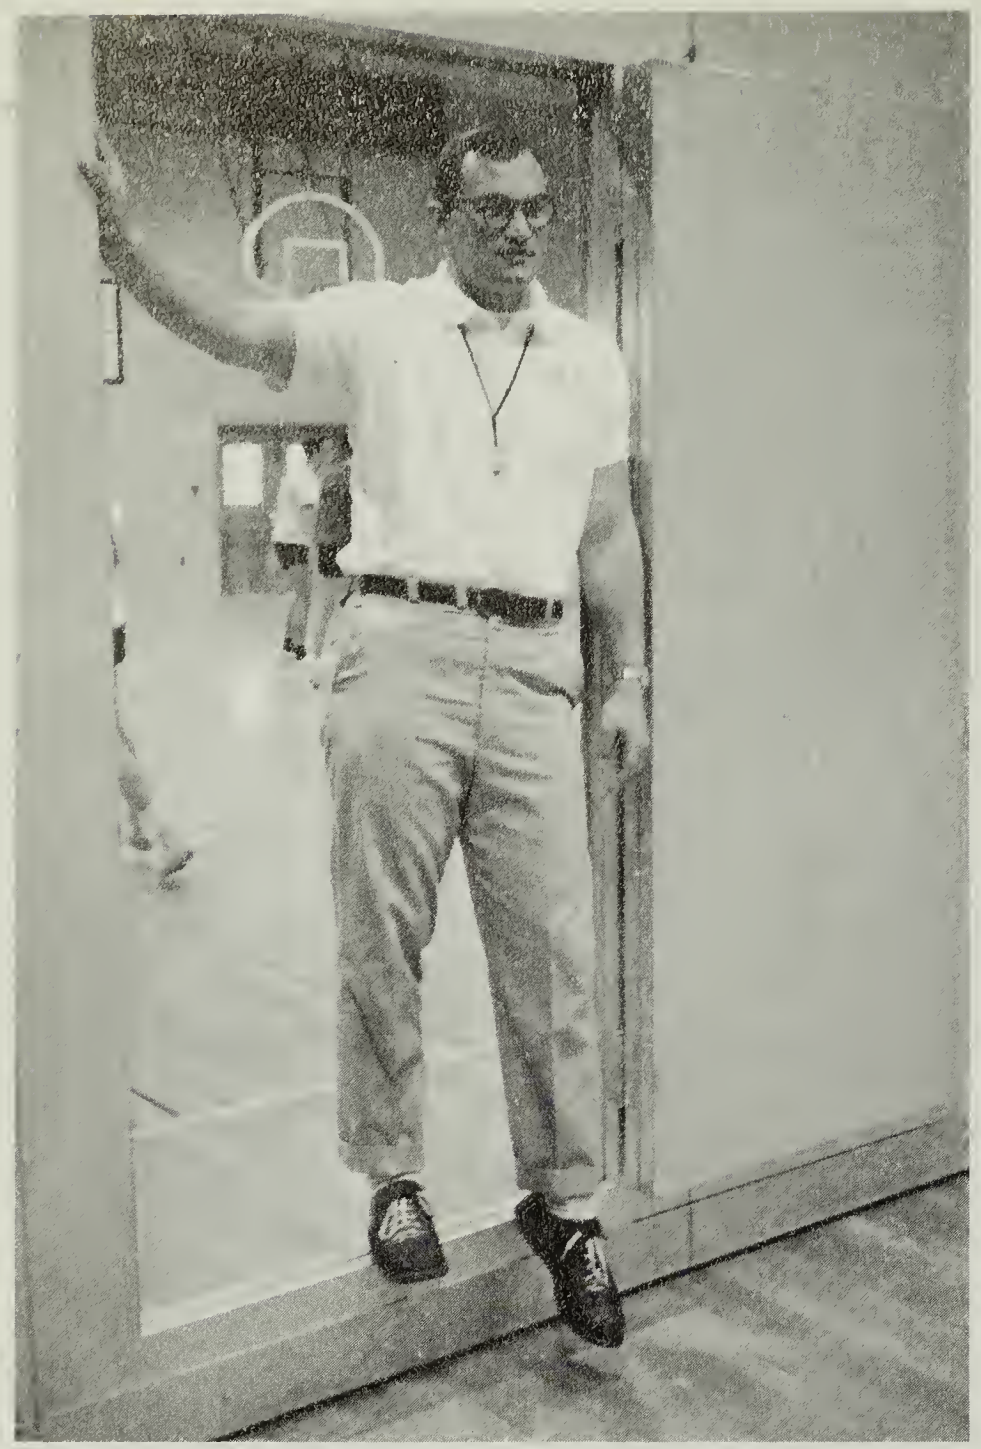

Mr. Monticone; East Carolina College, B.S.

Edward P. Teskey, Department Head; West Virginia Institute of Technology, B.S.

industrial arts

The Industrial Arts Department literally builds for the future, as its students learn the complex science of engineering and the craftsmanship of shop in order to prepare themselves to work with their hands as well as with their minds. Continually faced with new challenges of constructing and fashioning from raw materials, Federals are taught techniques with which to build a better world for everyone.

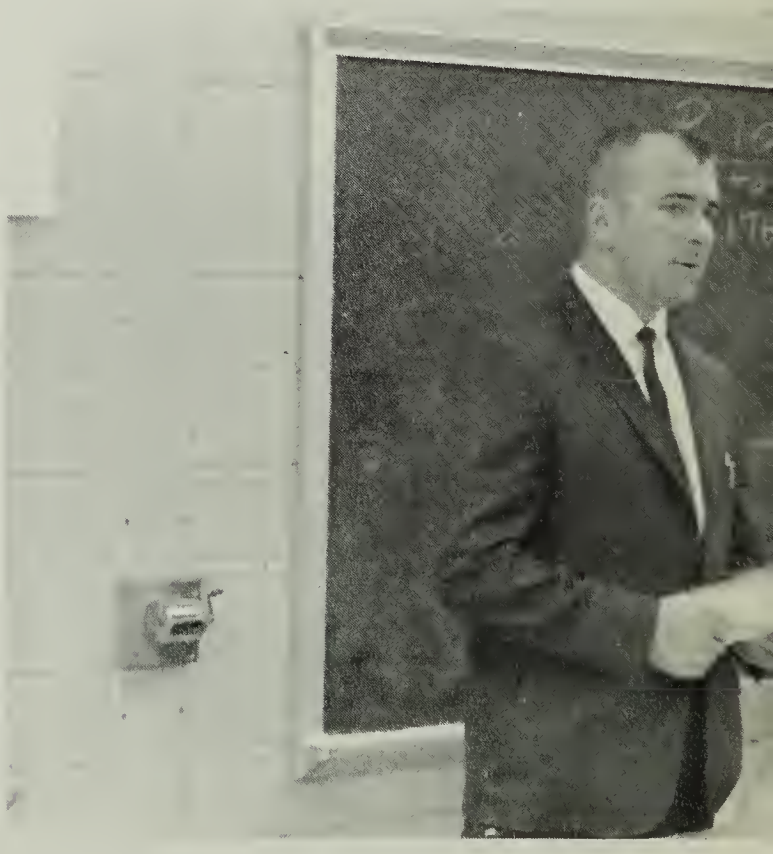

James C. Jensen; George Washington University, B.S., M.A.

boy's physical education

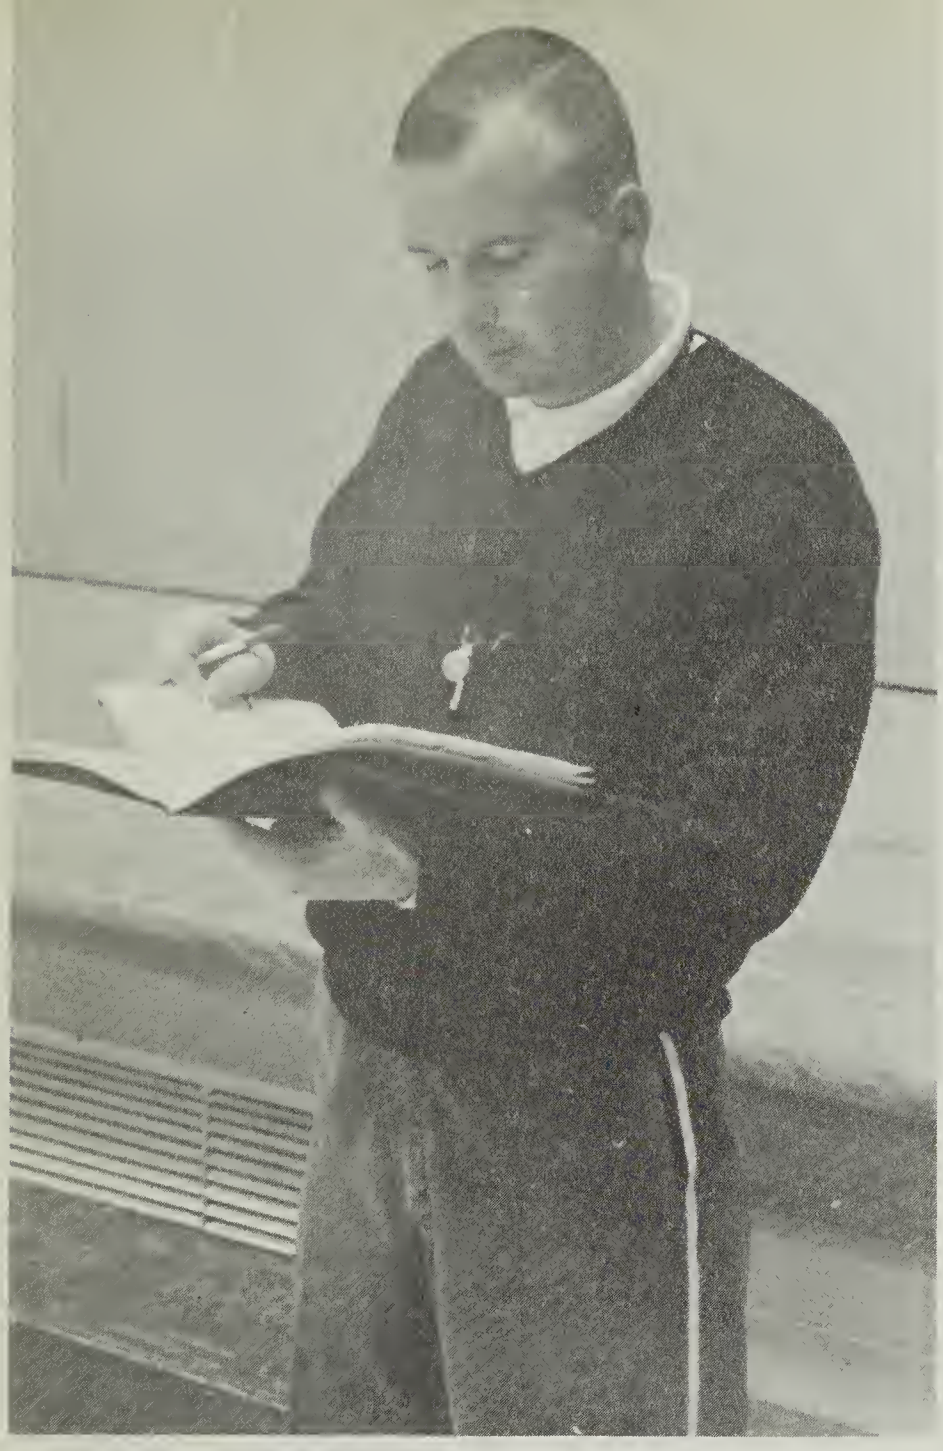

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," claims an old adage, and it also makes Jack weak and flabby. The Boy's Physical Education Department complements the academic work of Fort Hunt with a rigorous emphasis on physical fitness through activity. Featuring a multitude of sports throughout the year, there is no small emphasis made on health, character development, sportsmanship, and good, clean fun.

girl's physical education

No less active than the boys, the girls of Fort Hunt participate in numerous activities throughout the year. The Girl's Physical Education Department, featuring an active and varied program geared to meet a girl's needs and capabilities, helps each girl to develop fully, stressing physical prowess and co-ordination no less than the academic routine of Fort Hunt.

Cathie P. Roberts; Concord College, B.S.

Doris Gray; Madison College, B.S.

Eileen M. Doherty; Madison College, B.S.

Shirley Polinger; George Washington University, B.S.

Anne Mason, Department Head; Cal State at Los Angeles, B.A.

distributive education

"Learn and earn" is the basic precept of Distributive Education, which gives the student practical on-the-job business experience while allowing his to earn fair wages. Newly introduced at Fort Hunt last year, the Distributive Education program has proven to be a successful experiment, as well as a profitable one for its students.

Warren E. Smith, Department Head; Virginia Polytechnic Institute, B.S.

Frank B. Wickes; University of Delaware, B.A., University of Michigan, M.A.

Wilbert A. King, Department Head; Indiana University of Pennsylvania, B.S., University of Maryland, M.Ed.

music

"We are the music makers," said one poet, and the Music Department treats the school to many fine music makers from the choral and instrumental classes. The stirring and varied tones of the band and the harmonious notes of the choruses are familiar to the student body through a year-round series of performances. Through its talented students, the Music Department makes a valuable contribution to the world of the classical and contemporary music masters.

Vincent J. Murray; Potsdam State Teachers College, B.S., New York University, M.A.

Edwin Dunn; University of Tulsa, B.A.

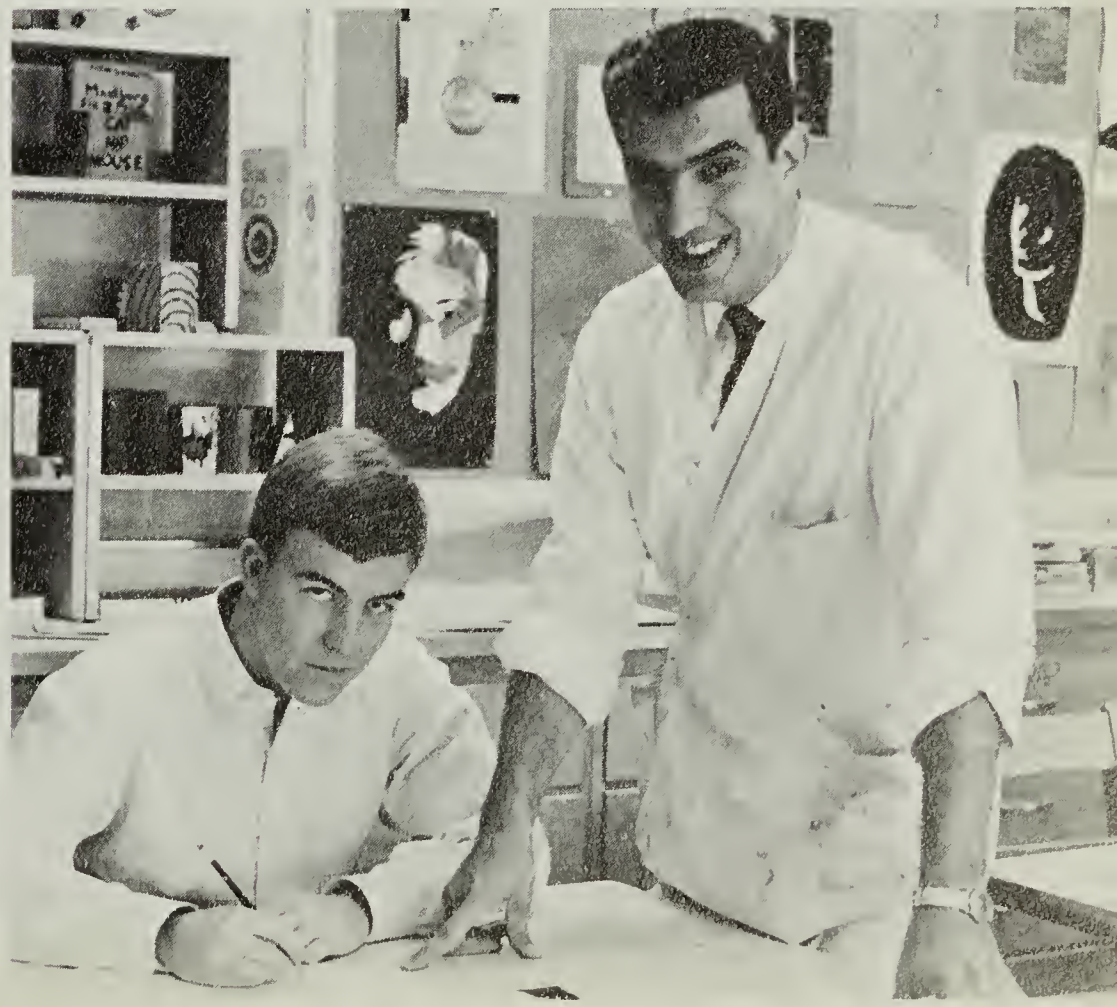

Rita L. Fox; University of Illinois, B.A.

art

From caveman drawings to the present day, man has always seeked self-expression through his art. Many of the most revealing portraits of life were created from the brushes of the world's great artists. The Fort Hunt Art Department develops the student's aesthetic sense of beauty, and teaches students to appreciate the beautiful. The Art Department also trains and encourages its own artists to reach out through the artistic mediums to express themselves and make life more beautiful for others.

Samuel N. Kladitis, Department Head; Youngstown University, B.S.

Constantly on guard against sickness and injury, the school nurse provides in-school care for students who suffer a wide variety of ailments. Always busy, whether washing a cut or conducting an exam, the nurse provides continuous care and sympathy for the ailing and is always ready to any emergency.

Mrs. Savage

librarians

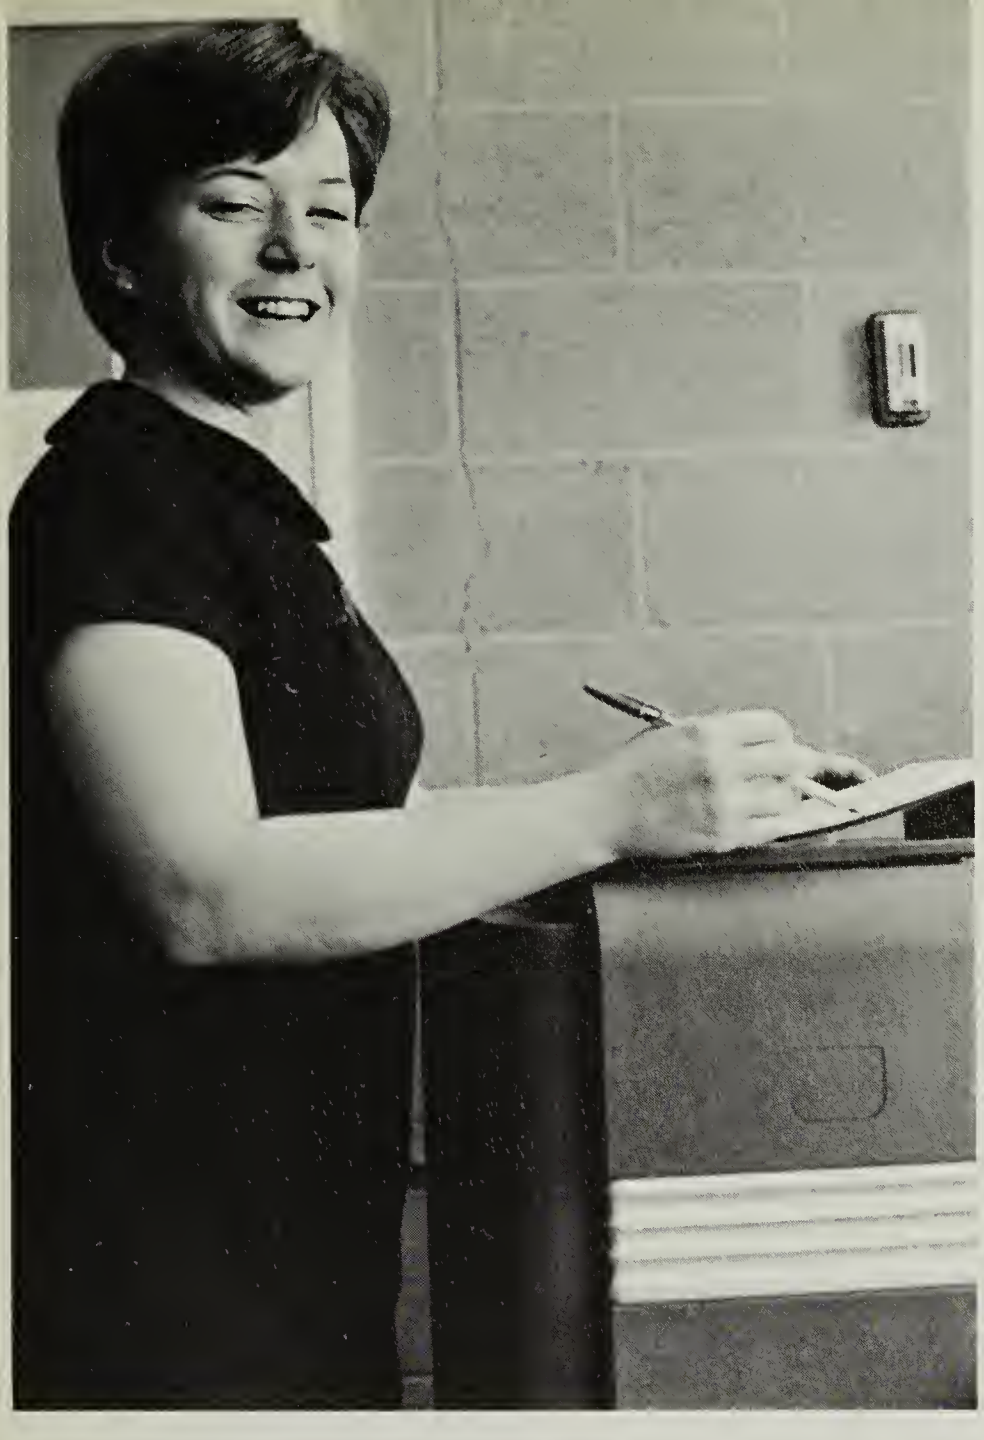

The librarians's job is a large one, and one of the most important in a school that places so much stress on academic scholarship. In addition to maintaining an immense collection of fiction and non-fiction books, the librarian is also in charge of providing the school's audio-visual aids and subscribing to a large number of current magazines. The roominess and quiet of the library provide students with an ideal atmosphere in which to read and think. Open every day, the library has something to offer each individual, and has a great potential for enlarging and enriching his mind.

Paula R. Baughan; Madison College, B.S.

secretaries

The school would grind to a stop if it weren't for the secretaries, who each day handle reams of paperwork required to maintain Fort Hunt's expanding curriculum and activities. Each day provides another round of challenges, as the secretaries type the forms and staple the patterns by which our school is run.

cafeteria staff

Each school day the cafeteria staff must prepare and serve a hot meal to 2500 hungry students and faculty. This year, in addition to the regular fare, the cafeteria has instituted the dietary lunch. With a concerned and dedicated interest in serving the best possible lunch, and facing immense daily logistical problems, the cafeteria staff has done much to put a little something into Federals this year.

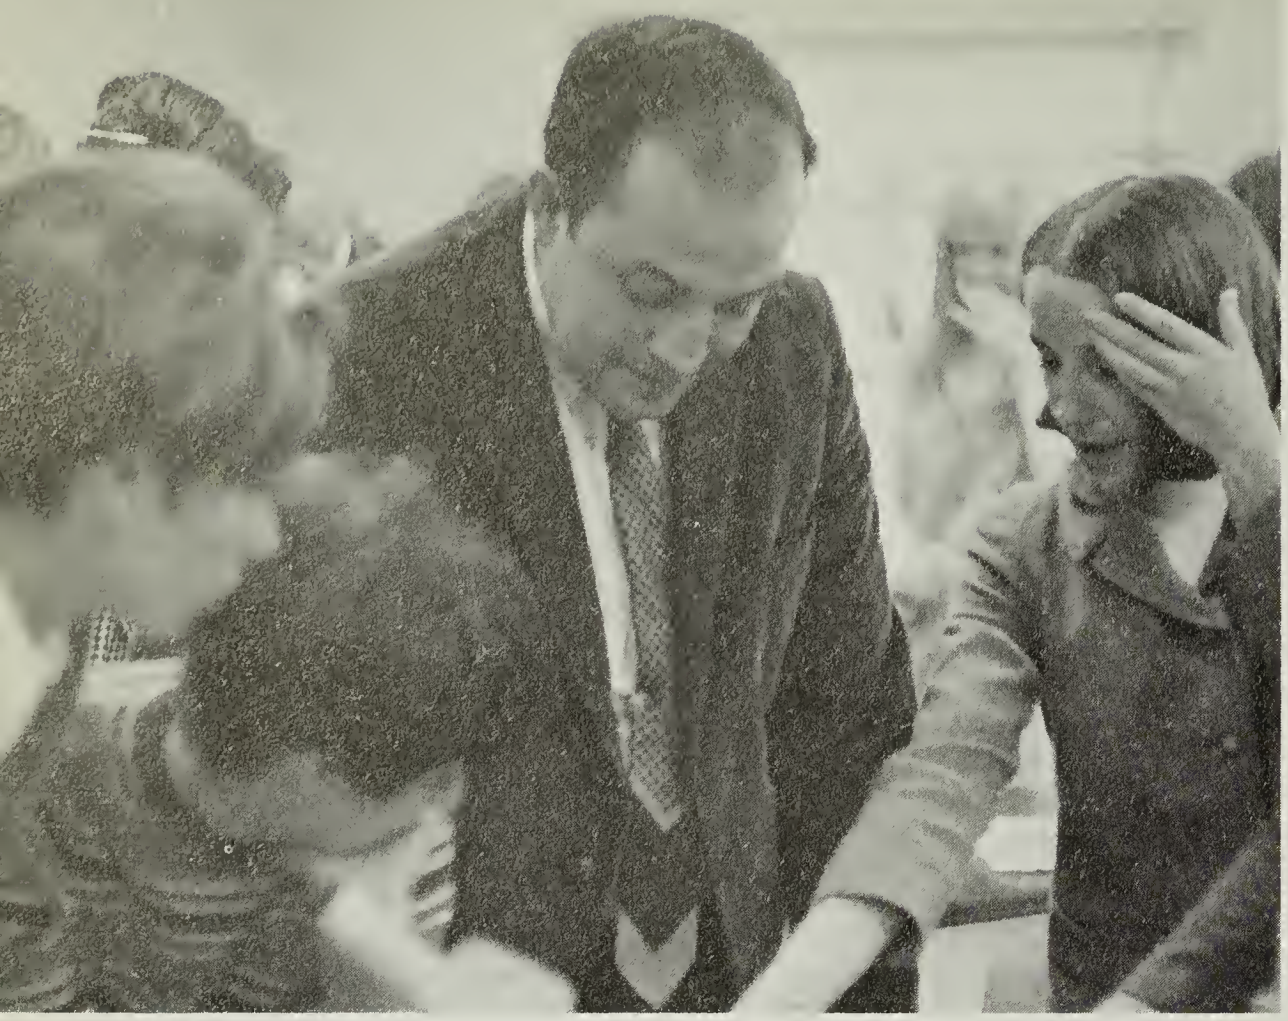

Mr. Floyd, Head Custodian.

There would be no school without the custodians, whose diligence day and night results in a constant and careful maintenance of school facilities. Under the supervision of Mr. Floyd, the excellent custodial staff provide year-round cleaning and repair service of the buildings and grounds of Fort Hunt.

Besides the academic excellence at Fort Hunt, Federals are every day showing their ability to participate, to learn on their own, and to have fun. The social life at school and its extra curricular activities reflect varied interests and talents as well as an abundance of spirit and willingness for fellowship.

s.g.a. alternates

s.g.a. delegates

Chosen to represent each homeroom, the student government delegates and alternates act as a liaison between the student body, the faculty, and the administration. The student government is continually striving to become a greater representative body of the students, working with the homerooms to broaden the student influence in the daily activities of Fort Hunt. The achievements of Fort Hunt's student government are the result of time and effort spent by these and numerous other students.

The Turret, the art and literary magazine of Fort Hunt, allows creative artists and writers of Fort Hunt to display their talents. The Turret aims to provide an outlet for creative students, to encourage the development of their talents, and to present their combined efforts in an issue which all Federals enjoy. The materials which appear in the Turret are selected from those submitted by the student body, especially the creative writing and art classes.

Getting up may not be a pre-requisite for the study of Greek in most schools, but at Fort Hunt, dedicated students of the Greek club met early Tuesday mornings for a study of the ancient tongue with Mrs. Hall. Introducing what could conceivably be a regular course next year, the students of the Greek club dived into the basic rudiments of the language of Homer and Plato, showing that the classics are not only alive at Fort Hunt, but they are still growing strong.

Moving profitably into its second year, the Fort Hunt chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, continued its work of giving D.E. students the opportunity to meet as a club and learn more of the business world in which they work. Providing an avenue through which students could gain a better understanding of practical business procedures and theories as well as giving them vocational freedom, DECA does much to cement relations between the D.E. students and the surrounding community.

Those errant flashbulbs popping off around the school are not caused only by the newspaper and yearbook photographers. Learning through doing, the Cave Club was one of the most active clubs during the year. With a membership of over fifty, the Cave Club not only went on regular spelunking expeditions throughout the state, it held regular, weekly meeting for the spreading of "caving" enthusiasm. Good equipment, common sense and experience, and well callused hands mark the spelunlers of Fort Hunt's Cave Club.

Last spring, the Fort Hunt Crew Team announced its coming upon the sports scene at Fort Hunt. Begun by Mr. Timothy Kerr and Mr. Robert Wiley, thirteen boys bravely formed the nucleus of what is now an eighty-five member organization. Offering grueling training and rugged rowing, the Crew Club has done well in competition, netting a third place in the President's Cup Regatta. Future competition promises to be equally hopeful.

This was a frantic, bustling year for Federal sports, with the teams from Fort Hunt battling fiercely to both victory and defeat. When they won, they won big; when they lost, those that fought them knew that they had had to fight the best.

As the Varsity Football and Basketball teams fought their way downfield and upcourt, in hard and eventful seasons, always there to cheer them on in victory and defeat were the Varsity Cheerleaders. Their tangles of arms and legs, their wildly flying pom-poms, and their bellowing megaphones were a familiar and encouraging sight at every game as the girls on the sideline gallantly spurred on Federal spirit and boosted team morale. In school and on the field, the cheerleaders did much to encourage and exemplify the pep and spunk of Fort Hunt's Varsity teams.

freshmen cheerleaders

No less vocal and agile than their Varsity sisters, the Junior Varsity and Freshman Cheerleaders urge their teams on into the winning column. At every game, both squads are there on the sidelines, doing their best to boost the team's morale. The Freshman cheerleaders, on their way to becoming Varsity, faithfully backed their team throughout the season with newly learned cheers and chants. Both Junior Varsity and Freshman cheerleaders enthused Federals, and sparked their teams with pep and determination.

drill team

Stepping quickly in fancy formation, the Drill Team marched out onto the field for the first football game and then, and at every home game thereafter, demonstrated the results of hours of practice to give Federals an exhibition of intricate precision marching. The Fort Hunt Drill Team is also well-known for its parade marching, and during the year well represented the school with their combined coordination and skill.

majorettes

Ever faithful through the fall and winter sports season, the majorettes greeted Federal fans at home games with spirited and imaginative routines, displaying their prowess with the baton. In their colorful green and white costumes, twirling their silver batons, the majorettes add much to the pageantry and spirit of Federal sports.

The Pep Squad's many girls comprise the most vocal, if not the most school-spirited, group at Fort Hunt. The Pep Squad in their green-and-white garb and pom poms worked hard this year in assisting the Cheerleaders in sparking and exemplifying school spirit at Fort Hunt.

varsity football

Although the title slipped away this year into the hands of Mt. Vernon, Fort Hunt's Varsity football team put plenty of muscle into the newly formed Gunston District. Coach Waldorf's Varsity Federals broke even on the record books, but displayed a wide range of individual talent and heart to make every game a fighting monument to its players and to the school.

Offense sneaks through the line

The Junior Varsity Football Team chalked up a winning season this year with plenty of action for Federal fans. Overcoming some defensive weaknesses, the JV Federals boasted an improved offense that made good use of player material to maintain hard attacks both on the ground and in the air. Coached by Mr. Don Perriello, the Junior Varsity team, with satisfying victories over Groveton and Mt. Vernon, kept Fort Hunt's honor untarnished on the football field.

Feds go through the pre game grand march.

"We're number one!" Federals shouted this year, and with good reason, as the Varsity Basketball team rolled over its opponents for a 9-1 district record and a 12-6 record overall, to take the Gunston District title. Featuring inspired team effort, individual star playing, and a determined will to conquer, the Federals made their first winning season into a total victory.

The J.V. wrestling squad has put a great deal of hard work into the 1967-68 season. As a result of their determination and effort.

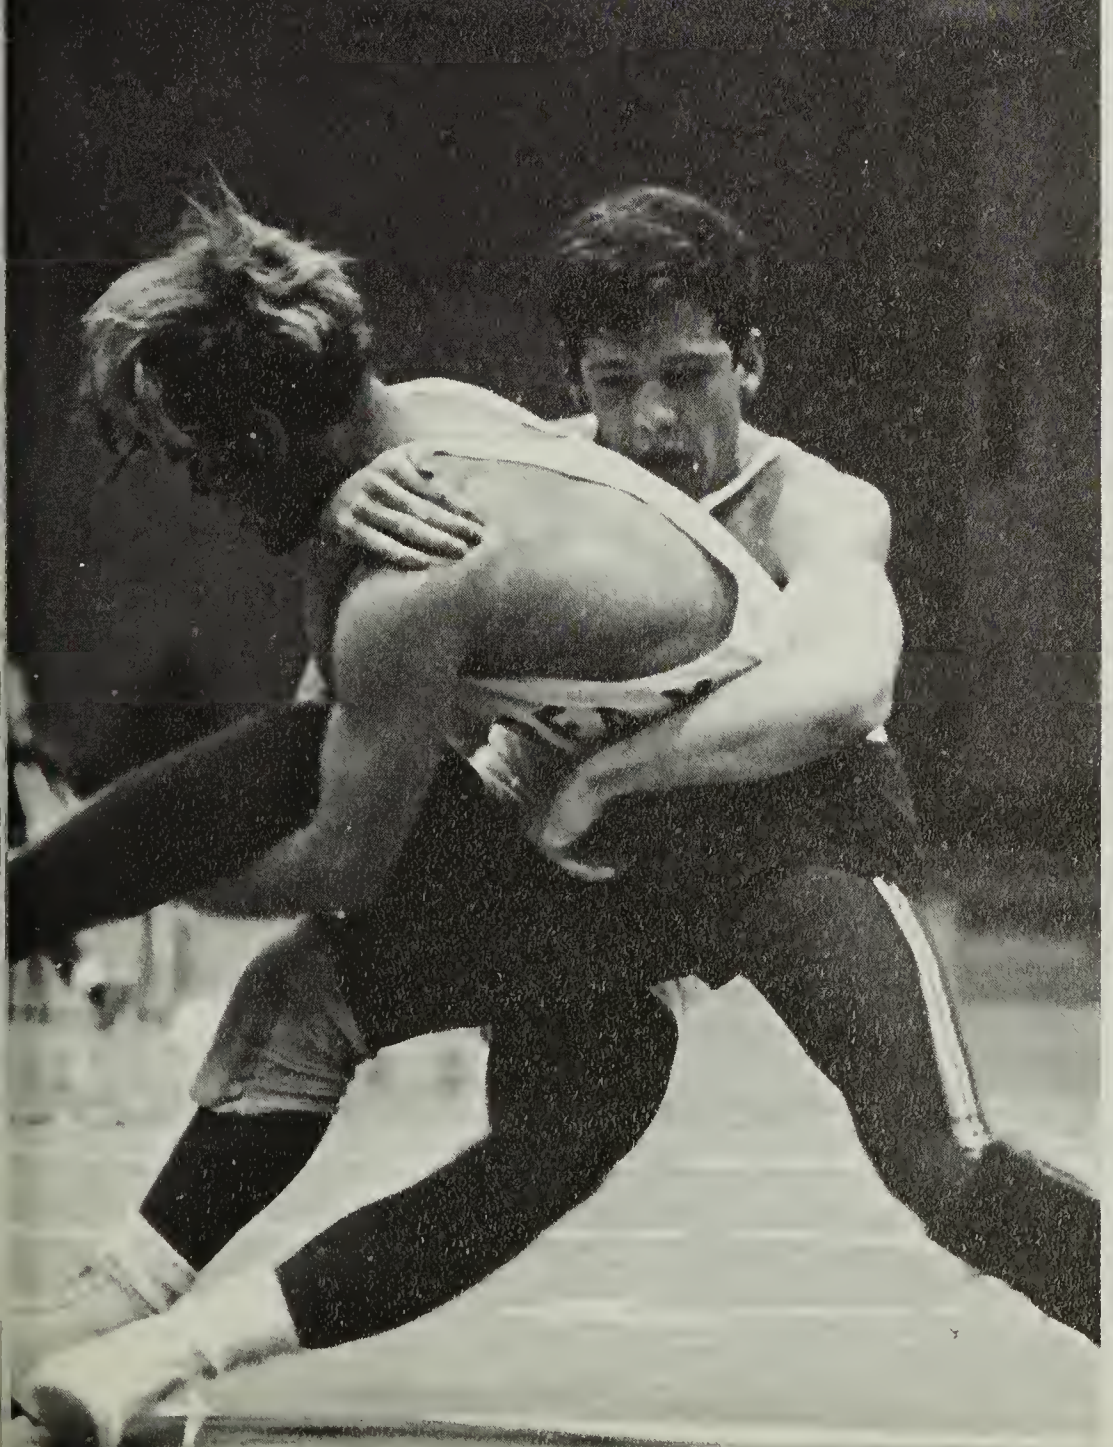

They wound up the season with an outstanding record of 7-3. The team consists of 50 boys, largely sophomores. Each week the boys are challenged by a fellow wrestler in their weight class and the winner of this "wrestle off" is the contestant for the upcoming event.

Regretfully showing a losing season both on the field and in the battle for fans, the Girls' Varsity Hockey team nonetheless has something to show for its efforts. Not only did the girls play for the school on field, but it was through the efforts of these girls that Federal football fans were able to buy the concessions at the home football games. Unnoticed and "unglorified", the girls put forth a fine showing for Fort Hunt, and next year will hopefully boast of more victories.

Senior cheering section.

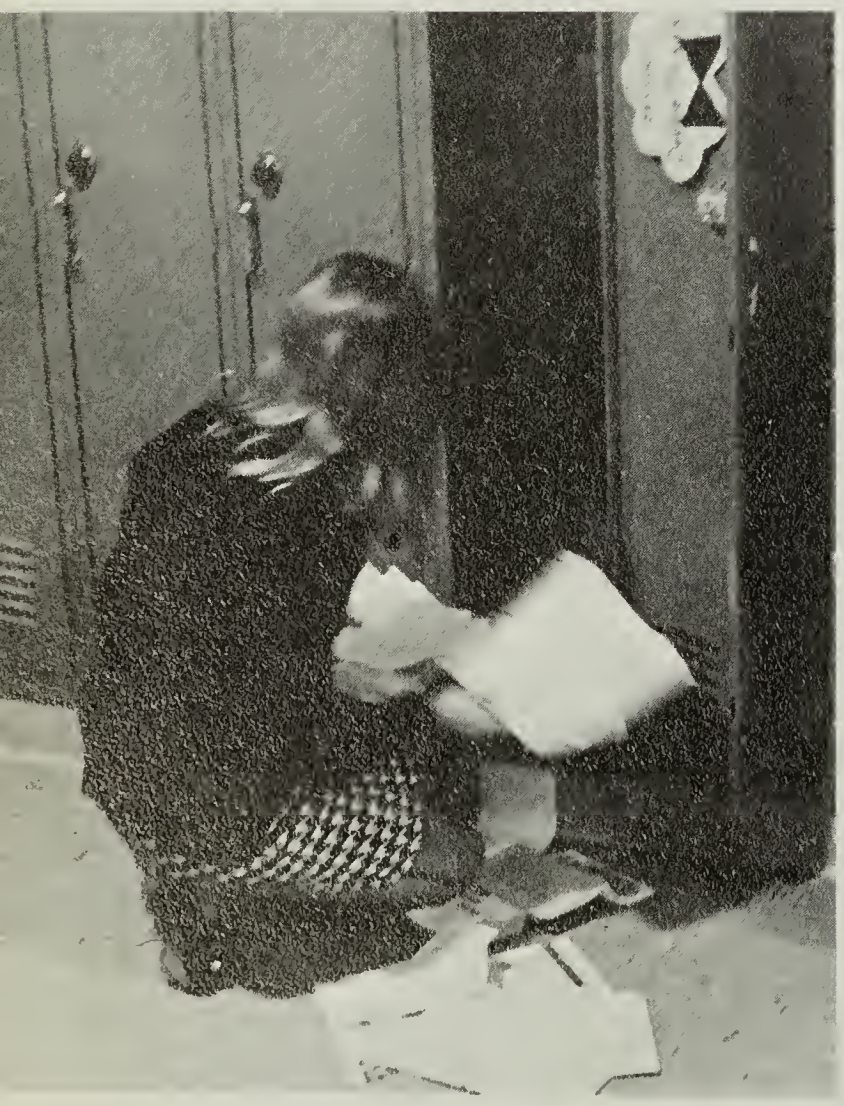

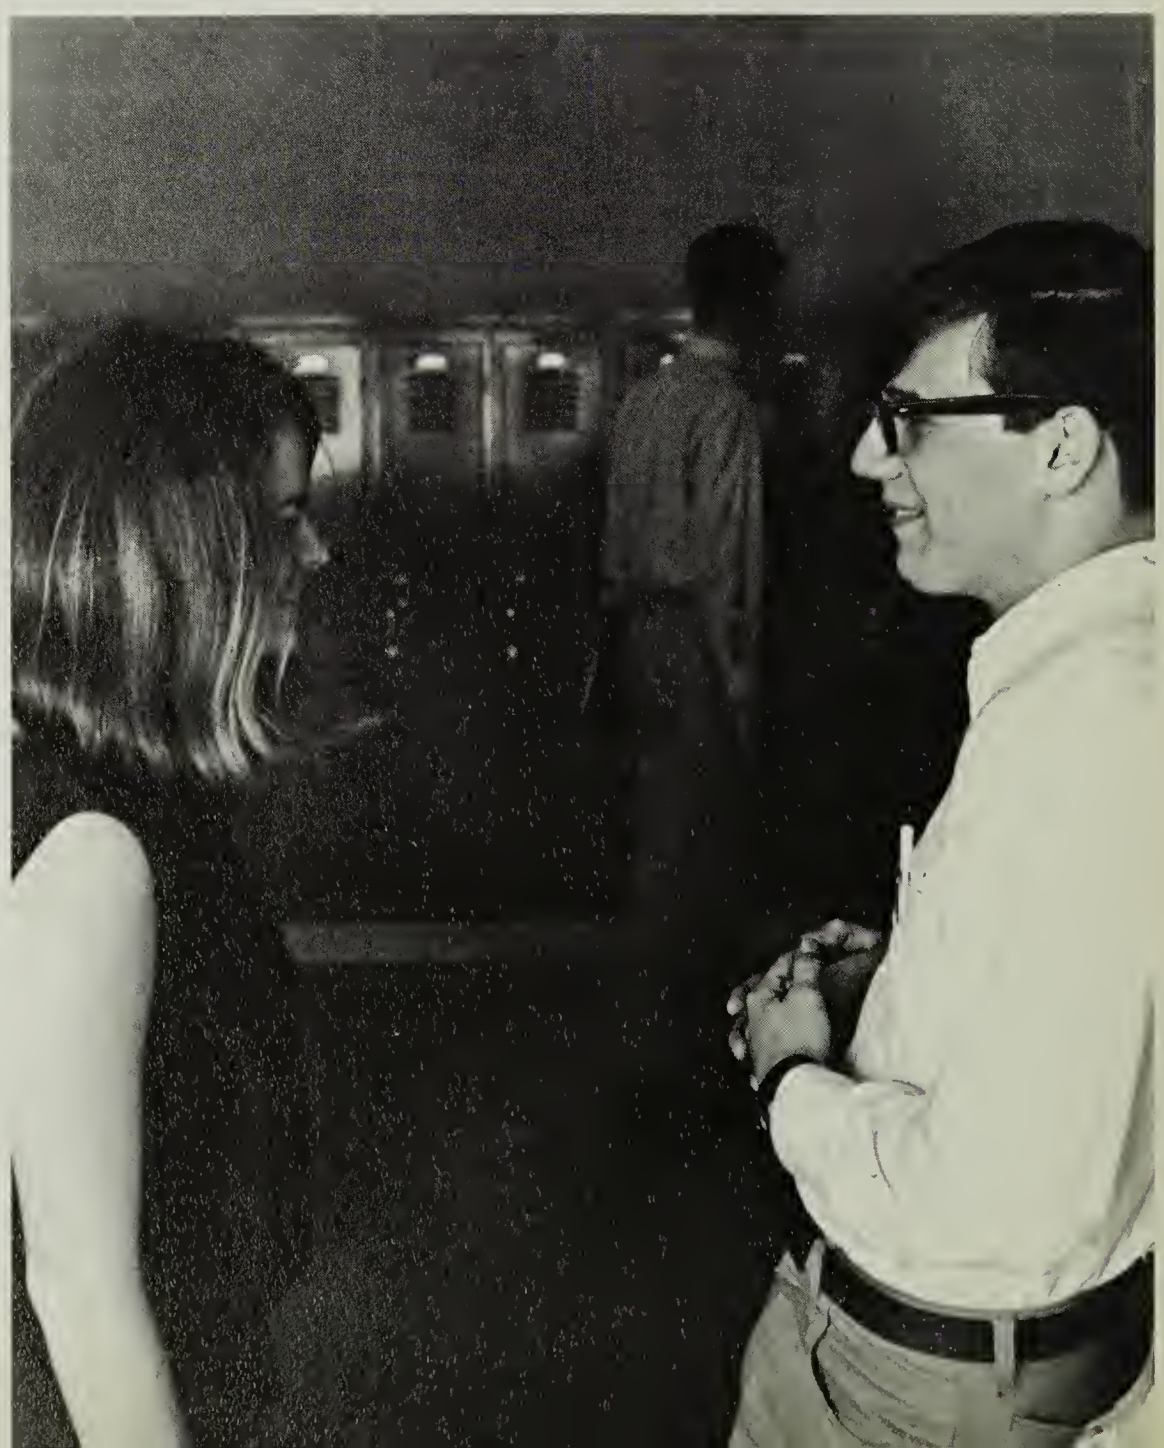

Now the journey has come to an end. Each Senior played an important role in the development and exodus of Fort Hunt High School. The individual by inspiration and hard work created one of the most spirited of all classes. The Fortress staff dedicates this final show of appreciation to the Class of '68.

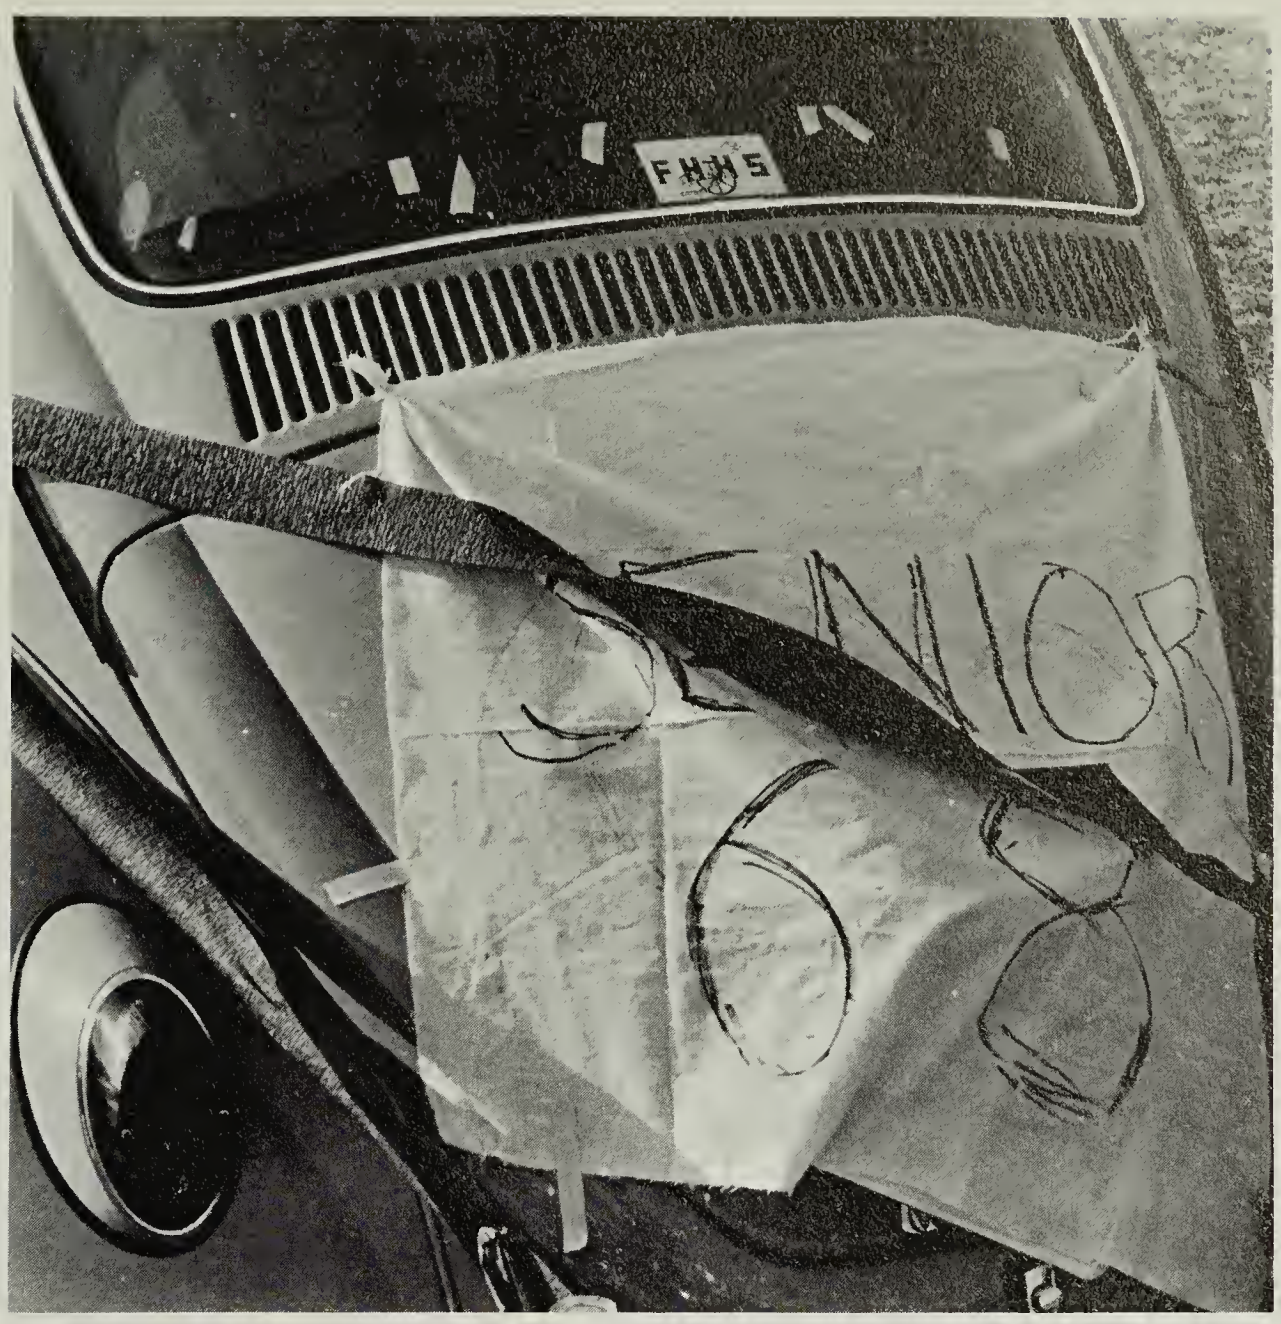

Ho, ho, ho!

As I was saying . . .

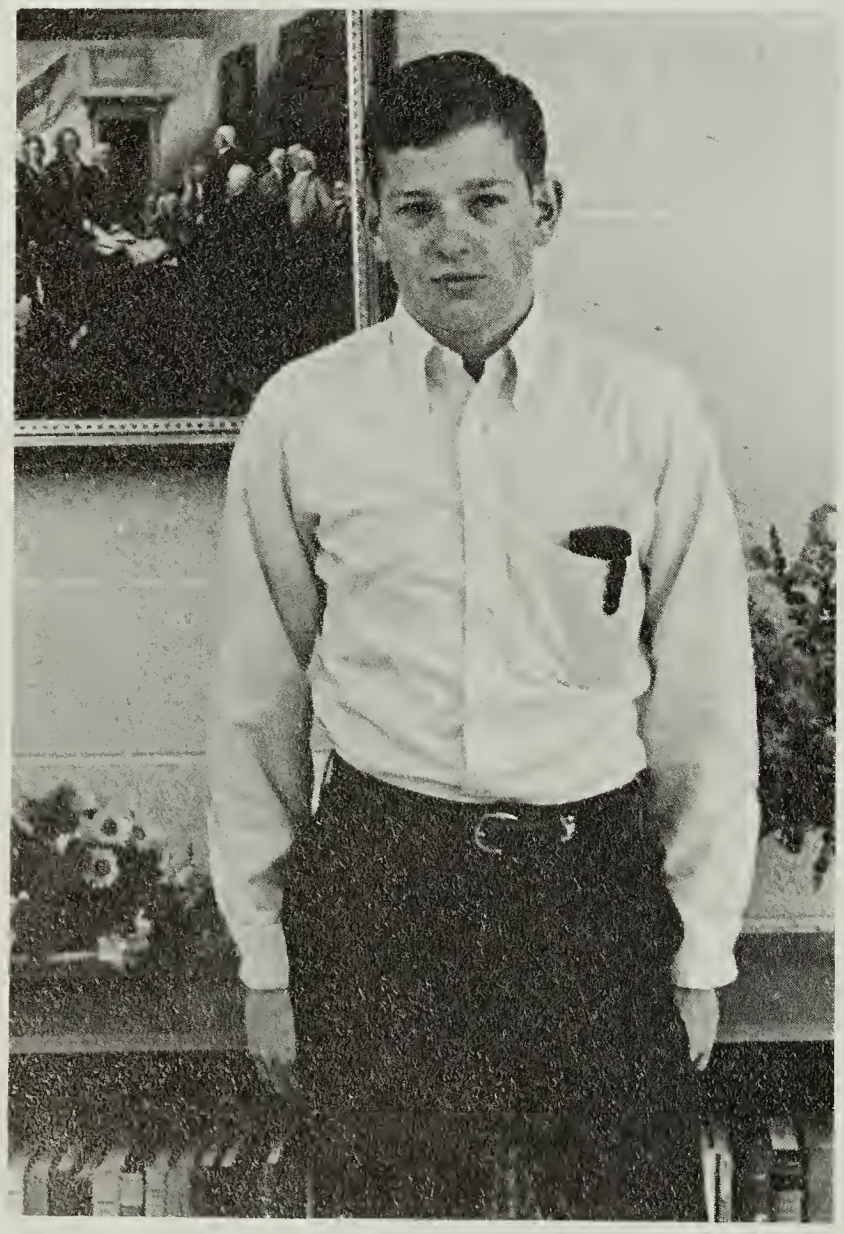

College pamphlets, huh?

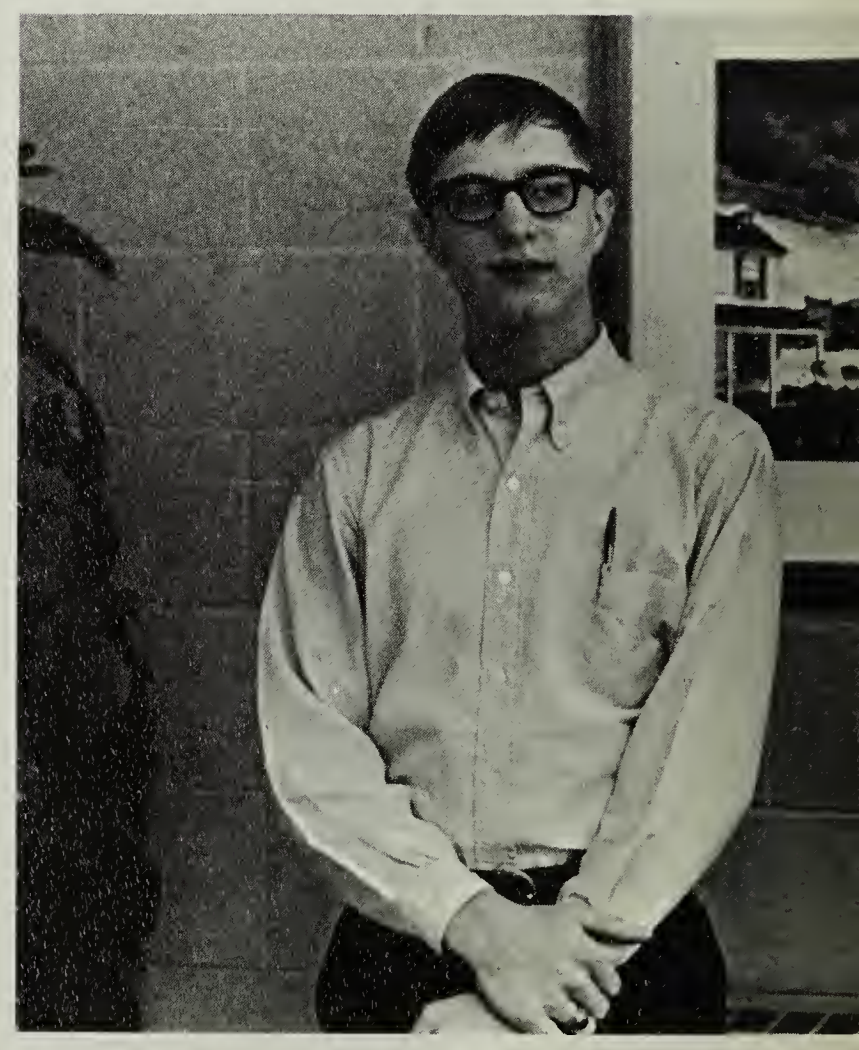

Pat Gober, Don Gilbert, Linda Watson.

One step further
    Along the way, better prepared
To learn, work, and contribute
    The individual strives
To carry responsibility of a better
    More, peaceful and progressive mankind.
